DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 6-7 and 11-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by van de Ven (U.S. Patent No. 4,666,248). van de Ven teaches a rear projection screen for a rear projection display comprising a Fresnel lens 20, a lenslet array 17, which may be comprised of anamorphic lenses, apertures 15, and a protective coating layer 11. As discussed in col. 11, lines 31-35, the screen is used with a convention slide or film projector which will have an exit pupil from which images will be projected. The projected images then enter the Fresnel lens 20 on the light entering side 12 of the screen. The Fresnel lens changes the light beam projected by the exit pupil from a divergent beam to a collimated beam. (col. 2, lines 40-43). The collimated beam then enters the lenses 17 to be converged at the holes 15. (col. 4, lines 46-49). Thus the holes are at location which correspond to the images of the exit pupil formed by the combination of the Fresnel structure and the lenslet array. As described at col. 1, lines 67 to col. 2, line 2 this is done for the purpose of ensuring “that a maximum amount of light from the primary image-source reaches the viewing space and which minimizes reflections of ambient light to the viewing space.”

Claims 1, 6-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Cooper, Jr. (U.S. Patent No. 3,580,611). Cooper, Jr. teaches a rear projection screen for a rear projection display comprising a Fresnel lens 48, a lenslet array 58, which may be comprised of anamorphic lenses, apertures 62, and a protective coating layer 34. As can be seen in figure 2 the typical projector 12' used with the screen must have an exit pupil to form the divergent beam 14 of images.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over van de Ven (U.S. Patent No. 4,666,248). Van de Ven teaches the salient features of the claimed invention except for the specific half field of view. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to choose the appropriate filed angles, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233.

Claims 2-5 and 11-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over van de Ven (U.S. Patent No. 4,666,248) in view of Guzman (U.S. Patent No. 4,184,672). Van de Ven teaches the salient features of the claimed invention except for a square/rectangular aperture, the CRT and pixel structure, and the specific viewing angles. Guzman teaches that round apertures and square/rectangular apertures were art known equivalents. Because they were art known equivalents, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize a square/rectangular aperture instead of a round one.

Van de Ven in view of Guzman teaches the salient features of the claimed invention except for the specific half field of view. Claims 2-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cooper, Jr. (U.S. Patent No. 3,580,611) in view of Guzman (U.S. Patent No. 4,184,672).
